

Other Things That Are "Tainted."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE SUN—Sir: The recent discussion of holy and unholy money cannot but result in good, even if it shall only quicken the ecclesiastical conscience and emphasize the fact that the Scriptures do teach that certain money contributions should be declined for and excluded from sacred uses. Something has been gained if this general principle has received reassertion.

But, on the same grounds, does not the Church nowadays sanction and receive other things that she should not tolerate? For instance, is there not such a thing as "tainted" music? It would seem so where a congregation engages to sing its praises a quartet who do not believe the hymns they are employed to render, and whose lives are notoriously not above reproach. A worldly, hireling vocalist, or worldly hireling organist is no more fit for a public position in the sanctuary than would be a worldly hireling pulpiteer.

And then, there may be "tainted" sermons. Such is every sermon that is denied by plagiarism, skepticism or insincerity. Certainly every discourse that contains and disseminates doubts as to the cardinal teachings of the New Testament is far more contaminated than Mr. Rockefeller's money, viewed in the worst light.
