

March 1st 1750.

Says Elizabeth Ruth to Amy, Come dear child of Mother, let us take a little comfort to day in what we like best. In petty things, in good & heavenly things.
It's indeed my comfort to remember & notice in love & blessing all my dear sisters, I have left none & I find none that are more worthy of every good thing that a kind Mothers hand can bestow. Your blessed parents all send by me their purest love peace strength & blessing & their unceasing prayers for your prosperity. They look upon you with delight because of your desire to gain good, & your devotioness to do good in the house of the Lord. So be comforted with this, & I will, as I have done, be your witness in heaven, & your guide & support in trouble, yea I will go hand & hand with you thro' all tribulation. When persevere on in the good way you are, ^{going} & at the end of the race you'll find a happy reward— Farewell in my sweetest love